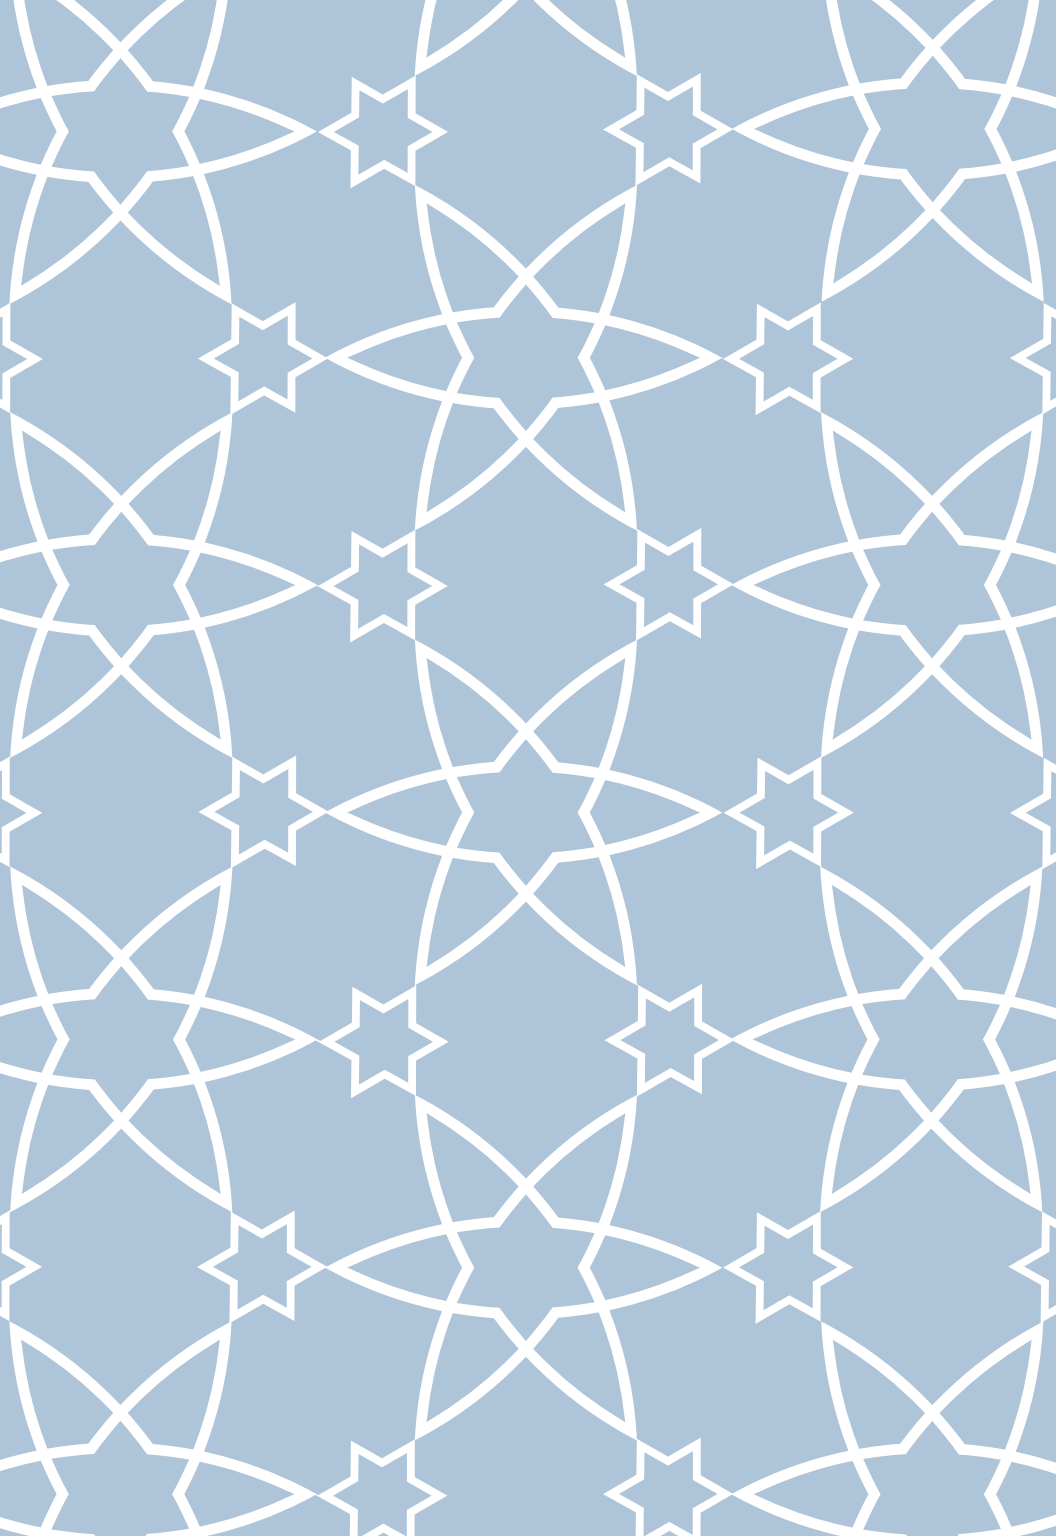
LIU INSTITUTE
FOR ASIA & ASIAN STUDIES



WELCOME TO MCAA 2017

Dear MCAA Conference participants,

Welcome to Notre Dame! We are honored to host the MCAA conference for the first time ever at our university, and we thank you all for being here on such a memorable occasion.

This academic year heralds the official opening of Notre Dame's Keough School of Global Affairs, the first new school founded at Notre Dame in a century. This whole year we will be celebrating Notre Dame's renewed commitment to worldwide dialogues through research and teaching, as well as the kind of genuine, solution-focused social engagement that lies at the heart of this university's mission.

The Liu Institute for Asia and Asian Studies, which I have the pleasure to direct, is an integral part of the new School and housed in spacious premises in the School's brand-new building: Jenkins and Nanovic Halls. Funded by a very generous gift from the RM Liu Foundation, the Institute pursues a simple, two-pronged strategy. We aim to recruit and develop a substantial core community of Asianists, and to promote a unique model of collaborative research, teaching, and social concern that will set us apart from other centers. We are committed to strengthening Notre Dame's presence in the field of Asian Studies, as well as enhancing its reputation in Asia.

We thank you for being here. We also thank the MCAA for allowing us to host its conference, the AAS for its support, and our wonderful keynote speakers for agreeing to share their work.

On behalf of my colleague, Patrick Deegan, and on behalf of the entire community of Asia scholars at Notre Dame, I send you best wishes for a successful conference!

Michel Hockx
Director, Liu Institute for Asia and Asian Studies
Professor of Chinese Literature

THE LIU INSTITUTE FOR ASIA AND ASIAN STUDIES

The Liu Institute for Asia and Asian Studies provides a forum for integrated and multi-disciplinary research and teaching on Asia. It supports innovative projects that actively combine teaching, research, and social engagement, creating a unique model of rounded education on Asia. The Institute also promotes general awareness, understanding, and knowledge of Asia through public events, student and faculty scholarship, as well as interaction and exchanges with partners in Asia.

Founded in 2011 with an endowment from the RM Liu Foundation, the Liu Institute engages with more than 80 faculty fellows across the University in a variety of disciplines. Traditionally, many fellows specialize in East Asia, but in recent years faculty expertise has expanded to include South Asia, particularly India.

The Liu Institute's signature event is the Asia Leadership Forum, held each year at the University of Notre Dame. The Forum brings in leading figures from Asia for a public lecture and close dialogue and discussion with Notre Dame faculty, students, and invited guests.

The Liu Institute shapes an approach to Asian Studies that integrates teaching at all levels with research and social engagement. This approach is grounded in the belief that Asia is not only central to global challenges ranging from climate change to political contest, but also a source of humanity's richness.

Through the Liu Institute, students at all levels have access to work alongside experienced researchers on innovative projects that place student learning and social engagement at the core of their investigations. A partnership with the University's Center for the Study of Languages and Cultures provides students with extensive opportunities for Asian language study.

As an integral part of the Keough School of Global Affairs, the Institute plays a key role in strengthening the Keough School's research and teaching on Asia, especially as it relates to integral human development.

Rupak Kulkarni (Flute), Hindole Majumdar (Tabla)

Wednesday, September 13, 2017
6:30 p.m., Free

Andrews Auditorium, Geddes Hall, University of Notre Dame

Pandit Rupak Kulkarni is the prime disciple of the legendary flute maestro Pandit Hariprasad Chaurasia, and a torch bearer of the Maihar Gharana. After training with his father, the late Pt. Malhar Rao Kulkarni, he began his tutelage under Pandit Hariprasad Chaurasia at the age of 9. He has performed in numerous prestigious music conferences and concerts in India, the US, the UK, Russia, Japan and France.

Hindole Majumdar already occupies a commendable position among the young tabla players of his generation. He received his training from Shibsankar Karmakar, a disciple of the late Ustad Karamatullah Khan, and from Pandit Sankha Chatterjee. A graded artist of All India Radio and Doordarshan, he has won numerous awards, including the first prize at several All Bengal tabla solo competitions

Film Screening: Raise the Umbrellas (2016)

A discussion with Filmmaker Evans Chan will precede the screening.

Thursday September 14, 2017
7:00 p.m. - 10:00 p.m., Free

DeBartolo Performing Arts Center, University of Notre Dame

Hailed as "the most comprehensive documentary" about Hong Kong's 2014 Umbrella Movement, Raise the Umbrellas explores the Occupy protest's origin and impact through the inter-generational lenses of three post-Tiananmen democratic activists — Martin Lee, founder of the Hong Kong Democratic party; Benny Tai, Occupy Central initiator; and Joshua Wong, the sprightly student leader — along with voices from "umbrella mothers," student occupiers, star politicians, prominent media professionals, international scholars, and activist LGBT Canton-pop icons. Incisive and intimate, driven by stirring on-site footage in a major Asian metropolis riven by protest, Umbrellas reveals the Movement's eco-awareness, gay activism, and burgeoning localism. Various anti-Occupy views, underscored by an interview with the pro-Beijing heavyweight Jasper Tsang, lays bare the sheer political risk for post-colonial Hong Kong's universal-suffragist striving to define its autonomy within China.
